Mug, also known by her username TomKatAran is one of Cumball's server admins and is technically the owner of the server, making her the most powerful member in the server. Shortly after she got admin, she, along with other admins, got a warning for loli/shota content being in the server, in a panic she quickly made rules for the anarchy server to preserve her own account as she believed that if she got banned from Discord again she would be unable to use Discord entirely. This restrictive phase of the server would last a few months until her rules were lifted and the server was off of Discord's radar for the time being.

Like other people who join Cumball, she had a tendency to go offline for extended periods of time. Some of these periods were so long that they led many members to believe she was dead or lost access to the account, but they would eventually be proven wrong every time. As of writing she is still sporadically active but is still active in the server, having changed the names of channels to reflect her “radioactive arc”, this arc is considered over in absence, but her profile picture, role, and nickname from the arc still persist although Doge changed her nickname as he often does with Cumball members to Margaret Thatcher.

Origin

Her username, according to her, was created from two pieces, TomKat and Aran, the former being her frequent nickname from others growing up and Aran being from Samus Aran, her favorite video game character.

She was apparently active on Discord for quite a long time before joining Cumball, having her own server called Tom Place which would be replaced with Mug Place. Both servers are dead and deprecated as of writing, but Tom Place supposedly had hundreds of members at one point before being taken down by Discord for having inappropriate content and lax rules which perpetuated the upload of this content.

Mug bought the roleplayer Basil's account in 2022 after being unable to create a new account due to being banned from Discord on multiple occasions. She either decided to rejoin, or the account was already in the Cumball Discord server and the rest is history.

Appearance

Nothing is confirmed about her appearance as she wisely has refrained from sharing pictures of herself or revealing too identifiable personal information, so all the information disclosed within was said of her own accord.

She has deep black long hair, striking green eyes, a fair chest size, a height of 5'8“[10)], pale skin with little body hair, British teeth, and soft hands.

Her outfits are usually not very skimpy has she is insecure about revealing certain parts of her body stating that her appearance is a natural masterpiece and she needs not to change a thing about it. This makes her hesitant to drown herself with makeup, paint her nails, shave certain hair, or modify anything about her natural body to remain genuine, which is a liked quality of hers by others.

Despite having what most women would consider a decent body she is dissatisfied with her body and its shape, considering her personality to be the most intriguing part of her, but most people who recall seeing her physical appearance disagree, like her siblings. She does not consider herself goth, but does wear dark clothing to make herself look more interesting and witch-like, and also like a witch's cat as she has apparently dressed up as one for costume parties and the like leveraging her striking green eyes and natural black hair for the costume.

Personality

She was known for being a horny bitch and a meth addict. Over the years she has cleaned up her act and is neither horny nor addicted to meth or any other drugs. She is known for being reasonably witty, charismatic and funny when she chooses to be, but is mostly depressed and rarely talks as much as she used to.

She is considered by herself and others as a girl failure, or incel. Despite having a likable personality and other endearing qualities about her like how she quit meth for the greater good, she still considers herself a failure of a human being and will remind people of that if they praise her character.

As indicated by her profile picture and way of speaking she is a big fan of Tomoko Kuroki, whom she identifies herself with. She supposedly shares physical features with her such as having black hair, green eyes, obtuse way of dressing, and a light skin tone, and a similar personality with a want to be popular with others and being a girl failure.

In real life she apparently isn't a very social person and would rather speak and travel with her friend group rather than meet new people as she sees people as nuisances, and mentally strenuous, but she is far more sociable online possibly due to her real physical appearance and limitations being out of the way allowing her personality to be the main appeal.

Mug doesn't consider herself consumed by lust or sexual things, but she does make frequent sexual jokes and give in to temptations other than drugs quite easily. Given that she is celibate, whether that's because she believes she is unfuckable or because she's flat-out disinterested in most sexual partners, she would almost always rather quench her sexual thirst by herself than with others, treating sexual desire as more of a burden that distracts her from doing fun things than a treat to share with others.

As Server Admin

She was known for being an abusive admin especially when her restrictive rules were in place, but over time she has mellowed out and rarely does anything major to the server or its members.

As Server Owner

Mug was given server owner after Filled With Nothing was banned (again) and needed a better way to distance himself from the server so that Discord didn't take the server down with him if he got banned again. His solution was to give one of his trusted admins control over the server, and Mug was that admin.

She received server owner at or before January 2025, and didn't know she had the power before Filled briefed her on it seemingly out of the blue.

Nuclear Arc

Mug decided that one day she would make her avatar green and glowing with radiation. According to her, she ingested Uranium and gained the ability to irradiate things with ionizing radiation (it's unknown whether she can do this passively or if she needs to do it actively to irradiate things), including people. Her goals are to replace the dominant energy source of the United States and the world at large with nuclear power, which she determined in an unbiased way that it is the best source of energy.

mug's avatar during the nuclear arc

It's presumed that she did this to reignite interest in herself and the server and to stir up activity, but just like many other attempts by other admins and even regular users, this arc failed to regain interest and activity in the server and its legacy was also short-lived like the arc itself which only lasted about a week before becoming stale.

Post-Nuke

Mug has been too absent to comment on the end of the Nuclear Arc, but it is considered over due to her absence from the server and the fact that members have mostly moved on from her nuclear branding and the Nuclear Arc.

Although it has been years since she has last measured herself out of fear of shrinkage or growth stating that 5'8” is her perfect height
